

Chief Executive

This highly regarded organisation plays a pivotal role in support, awareness and research of an illness affecting thousands of children and adults in Australia. It strives for quality of life for members, clients and carers through support, information and education programs, and aims to reduce the impact of the condition across New South Wales.

Reporting to a governance Board and managing a small team, you will have overall responsibility for policy development, program delivery, fundraising, advocacy, marketing and stakeholder liaison.

This key appointment is crucial to their continued success, so you must be a proven leader who can build trust and genuine relationships with a broad range of stakeholders and deliver results. A background in the health sector would be highly regarded.

If you can think strategically, roll up your sleeves and lead through collaboration, send your application. Alternatively call Philip Mayers or Michelle Varcoe for further information.
